Analytic Staffing

The Taylor Feldman Group, LLC provides a flexible solution to temporary shortages of programmer analysts in analytic departments. Our experience in managed care, data analysis, and SAS programming allows us to rapidly understand your business and analytic objectives and deliver results.

All the work we do is performed by the principals. With this unique approach, you will always be dealing with experienced analysts who are not only technically skilled with extensive business knowledge, but also well versed in communicating with executives at all levels.

Our disciplined project management approach ensures your important questions are answered quickly and efficiently. Our approach also provides you with feedback allowing you to control overall scope and manage the expectations of your customers.

We have worked with analytic departments of large insurers, TPAs, managed care groups and research organizations. With short notice, we can join your team to maintain routine SAS programming and analytic duties as well as undertake new projects while you search for the right permanent staffer. We can even help you conduct your search.
